DEA. WILLIAM WEEKS.

Seldom has the Christian profession shone so bright and more steady light than it did in the life of the late Dea. Weeks, of Greenland, whose death, at the advanced age of 82½ years, was recorded in our last Journal. Humble and retiring, he was nevertheless, efficient and influential. He was distinguished for a sincerity and kindness of heart which won for him the respect and love of all who knew him. His temper and daily walk betokened "an integrity of deed, in whom was no guile." The church of which he was long a good and faithful officer and servant, and the community in whose welfare he ever felt a personal interest, will cherish his memory as that of one whose life was eminently valuable and useful, and whose example will still live for their imitation and encouragement.
